Hazardous Duty and Insurance

11 June 1956

In October 1952, the CIA Career Service Board (predecessor of the CIA Career Council) established a Hazardous Duty Working Group under the chairmanship of [REDACTED] to determine whether the principle of "hazardous duty" pay should be established in CIA. [REDACTED] interviewed Admiral Lewis Strauss (before he became a member of the Atomic Energy Commission) in New York since Admiral Strauss had been appointed by the President to head a Commission to report on the question of hazardous duty and incentive pay in the Armed Forces. As a result of the report of the Hazardous Duty Working Group and the recommendations of Admiral Strauss, the CIA Career Service Board on 10 March 1953 decided it would not recommend to the Director a pay differential for hazardous duty but that it would explore the possibility of protecting CIA employees through an insurance program especially tailored to meet the needs of the Agency.

As a result of its decision on 10 March, the CIA Career Service Board established an Insurance Task Force under the Chairmanship of [REDACTED]. Actuarial consultants were authorized by the Career Service Board, their advice was reviewed by the Board, and on 30 June 1954, the Board approved the report of the Insurance Task Force. On the basis of this approval, a contract was negotiated by the Office of Personnel and the General Counsel with Mutual of Omaha, the contract being signed on 29 July 1954. In the meantime, a sterilized brochure describing the new hospitalization and life group plans had been prepared with the collaboration of representatives of the insurance company and on 29 July, a classified notice explaining the unclassified brochure was issued.
